picture and movie

Take good scenic by keeping them clean and simple; include something in the foreground for interest and dimension.

Let action help make your pictures interesting. And remember to use flash when trying to stop action, or anytime the light is dim.

More picture and movie-making help—as well as film, flash and free Polaroid cameras

TIPS FOR BETTER DISNEYLAND PICTURES

Before You Shoot

1. Make sure your camera is clean. Clean the lens by first blowing off the dust, then moistening and wiping gently with a soft tissue. Clean the inside of the camera by blowing out any dust; wipe the picture-taking rollers of instant cameras.

2. Make sure your film is fresh. The expiration date is stamped on the box.

3. Check the batteries and battery contacts, a large cause of picture-taking failure. (Note: This is not necessary in Polaroid SX-70, Pronto and OneStep cameras because a fresh battery is contained in each SX-70 film pack.)

4. If you think your camera isn't working properly, don't waste film or flash. Visit the Polaroid Camera Center, Main Street, U.S.A., for advice and/or the free loan of a Polaroid Pronto "Sonar" automatic focusing camera.

When You Shoot

1. Stand so that the light falling on the subject comes from behind you, or from the side. Remember, if the sun is shining into your eyes (and the

TIPS FOR BETTER DISNEYLAND MOVIES

1. Check the batteries in your camera. If you are going to film more than one cassette, it's good to have spare batteries with you.

2. You can create more interesting movies by thinking of a "theme" in advance—"A Tour Down Main Street, U.S.A.," for example. With planning, you'll find the three-minute average cassette length just about right.

3. Shoot with the sun behind you or to your side. If you shoot into the sun, you'll probably fool the camera's electric eye and the scene will end up too dark.

4. Try to have all your subject matter lit evenly. Otherwise, very bright or dark areas may fool the electric eye and result in an over or under exposed scene.

Move in for good people pictures. Details and expressions will be sharper and clearer.

Keep the background simple and complementary. For flash pictures avoid excessively dark or distant background.

camera's electric eye) the scene will probably come out too dark in your picture.

2. When in doubt about the light, use flash,* keeping in mind the maximum flash range of the camera. With some cameras (Polaroid SX-70 type cameras, for example), you can automatically blend flash with daylight to soften deep shadows and improve pictures made in the shade or against the light.

3. Don't attempt a picture closer than about 4', or a flash picture farther than about 12', except with 35mm and SX-70 cameras.

4. Try to fill the viewfinder with as much of the subject as possible. The larger the subject, the more interesting your picture will be!

5. Keep the background simple. Try to avoid distracting objects in the foreground and background objects that appear to "grow out" of the subject.

6. Hold the camera steady. Gently squeeze the shutter button; do not "punch" the button.

*Flash photography is not permitted inside any indoor attraction at Disneyland, except "It's A Small World!"

5. Use the zoom lens sparingly and only when it contributes to a scene. Too much zooming in and out will be distracting to your viewers.

6. Move the camera sideways (panning) very slowly (about half as fast as you're inclined). If you pan too fast, your movie will appear blurred.

7. Shoot each scene for at least 5 seconds. Be sure to include "establishing shots" (overall views, signs, etc.) as well as family action.

8. If you are using a Polavision instant movie camera, be sure to take your cassette to the Polaroid Camera Center where you can view the movies you took today on the spot.

(If you don't have a Polavision camera, see the back cover for details on the Camera Shop's free trial offer.)
